

In the permanent analysis of all the actions involved in the Quality Management System and with the aim of adapting it to the continuous changes that the product undergoes, both in its design due to its adaptation to the latest market trends and to the optimisation of the manufacturing processes, the Management of the Quality Management System, in accordance with the repeatedly committed desire to maintain an adequate QUALITY POLICY, ensures that this:

- a) is aimed at achieving the continuous improvement of all the activities carried out in the organisation;
- b) to increase customer satisfaction, both in terms of the quality of its service and its products;
- c) is known and participated in by the whole organisation, creating and maintaining the right environment for the staff to be involved in the achievement of the established objectives;
- d) conforms its products to national and international requirements, regulations and directives, as well as to those of its customers and those of the Quality Management System;
- e) takes into consideration respect and care for the environment.
- f) is periodically reviewed for its continuous improvement.

With commitment,
QMS Manager